From the Acting Principal, Brea Terris

As we head into the last week of term, it is so lovely to see JU1 &2 have moved into their new portable. Thank you very much to all of the parent helpers who supported us with the move over the past few days! The classrooms looks fantastic! Thank you to Felicity and Leesa who have set up a wonderful new learning environment for our students.

Reports

Early next week all families will receive mid-year reports on Compass. A letter will also be posted on Compass explaining the changes to the reports this year in line with the Victorian Curriculum.

A reminder that we also have Parent Teacher Interviews on Thursday the 29th of June. Please make sure you have booked a time on Compass for an appointment with your child/s teacher. This is a pupil free day.

Rubbish

This week staff have spoken about ways to ensure we are keeping Woodend PS clean from litter. Leading up to the end of term we will be having a few whole school clean ups at the end of lunch and encouraging students to throw their rubbish in the bin before they go outside.

Athletics

It was great seeing so many students participating in the House Athletics carnival yesterday. There was a lot of excitement yesterday at assembly, waiting to hear which house won.

Congratulations to all houses; Chisolm, Dryden, Mitchell and Ebden.

Days like this could not go ahead without the support of our staff and parent helpers. A huge thank to Sharon Connell for organising the day. Sports days such as athletics, take a huge amount of work to run and Sharon does an amazing job in organising these events.

Staff Car Park

Many of you may have noticed that we have placed new signage on the staff car park. We ask parents to help us by not parking in this area between 8.30am and 4.30pm. We understand that at drop off times, it is very busy around the school, but it is important to park in the correct areas to ensure student safety at all times.

Carlsruhe Movie night

Tomorrow night is the movie night for Carlsruhe students. The movie night is being held at Woodend PS. We were originally hoping to hold the evening in the new portables, but due to some minor works needing to be completed the movie night will be held in the school hall.

Principal Forum

Next Monday and Tuesday, I will be attending the North West Principal forum in Melbourne. The focus of the two days fits into the agenda of school improvement. I look forward to sharing with the staff the key learnings I take out of the two days.

Brea Terris
Acting Principal

Moving the Wood Chips and the Rubbish

Greetings folks, a number of the school community have asked for as much notice as possible for the Working Bees. The school council have scheduled two more Working Bees this year: Saturday September 9th from 1-4pm and Saturday November 11th from 3-6pm. We're trying afternoons this time to avoid Saturday morning events like sports and markets. The PFA BBQ was very popular at the end of the last Working Bee and they've very kindly offered to feed us again! In September we'll be working on the Woodend campus, in November we'll be in Carlsruhe helping to prepare the grounds for the Carlsruhe Country Fair.

We have two large piles of wood chips in the yard - these need to be moved a short trip down the hill to the playground (next to the footpath, near the High St crossing). As the wood chips are not officially "soft fall" they should not be placed under the high parts of the play equipment. Please donate a little of your time (at any time you'd like) to move some of the wood chips - organise a small group and make it a social event! If you come during school hours you can borrow wheel-barrows and tools from the school (ask at the Office). If a few groups organise to do this we as a school community should be able to get this done quickly.

We've had a fair bit of feedback about the amount of rubbish being seen around the school-ground. The school staff and school council have been discussing this issue and will be working to address the problem. In the meantime if you're wandering through the grounds and see some rubbish please grab it and chuck it in a bin (and many thanks to the many parents who are already doing this - some of you are even bringing bags and picking up large amounts). First and foremost keeping rubbish in bins is a student responsibility, and we'll be making sure that the student body remains a part of keeping the school grounds rubbish free.

Lisa Chesters

On the 9th of June Lisa Chesters, our Federal Member in Parliament House, came in to talk about her job as a Labor Politician. Lisa talked about what she does and doesn't agree with and some rules that labour want to put in place. One rule that I found interesting and that she wanted to change was letting people 16+ vote instead of 18+ which not many kids disagreed with. Lisa also gave the Year 6s a certificate as part of our trip to Canberra.

Winter Sports Tee Ball

On Wednesday the 14th of June the grade 5's and 6's on the tee ball team went to do the winter sports at Romsey Primary School on the oval. They went against 7 other schools in the local area. So there was an odd number of teams so one of the teams would have to sit out until one of the games ended. Each team would have a go of fielding and batting, on the fielding team there would be 3 bases and someone on the fielding team would have to stand there, there was a pitcher, who has to be in the diamond which is in between all the bases, and the other fielders which have to be outside of the diamond.

So the first team we went against was St Ambrose at first they were starting to go ahead in score but finally at the end of the game we got more home runs and points to win the game. The second team we went against was Romsey P.S and that team weren't the best team we'd gone against they were still a great team so eventually when that game ended we had won and everyone on the team were filled with happiness because we had just had our second win! So we went off to have a break and to eat our recess and waited to go on for the next game. so that time had come and we were skipping to go to the next team to compete with and that team was- our lady and we were not skipping on the way back we had lost but at least we still had 2 wins and one loss. Then we went to go to the next team and the team we went against was St Mary's. Whack that's what it sounded like when that team would hit the ball and we would either catch it or chase after it so when that game ended we got the score and it was a tie/draw so by then we had 2 wins 1 loss and 1 draw.

We then went to compete with Braemar College and they were really good and did great throws so not many of us got a home run but we still had fun so we ended up coming last but really it didn't matter that much. Next was candle bark and they were really good at start and we weren't that good then but by the end we were getting better we needed one more home run to get a point and win so we hit the bat and ran but the ball was delivered before we could get to home base and it ended up that we had another draw so the score by then was 2 wins 2 draws 2 loss so we had one more team to against and that was Kyneton but unfortunately we lost so when we finished that game we went and check our score which was 6th place or you could say second last but we still worked well as a team so soon enough we hopped onto the bus and saw our r friends that were doing other sports like netball and football and headed back to Woodend.

Girl's Netball

On the 14 of June, grade 5/ 6 girls went to compete in the Cobaw Netball we played 7 games we competed against Romsey first we unfortunately lost against them we lost the next 5 schools we played we lost. A great win against Bolinda, but Lancefield Primary forfeited so we won that one. Altogether we had a great games and we had lucky weather all day.

Anxiety in Secondary School Kids

By Dr Jodi Richardson

Anxiety is common and treatable, but it's also something that can be scary and confusing.

It doesn't have to be. I'm hoping that this article helps you feel more in the know and better equipped to understand what's happening in an anxious mind, recognise it, support your teen and seek help if needed.

First, some stats. In Australia, 1 in 3 women and 1 in 5 men will experience anxiety in their lifetime. That's an average of 25 per cent of the population. I'd be surprised if you didn't know someone who has it. The statistics are more comforting when it comes to secondary school kids where 7 per cent (that's around 1 in 14) are diagnosed with anxiety.

We've all experienced it. It's a completely normal reaction under dangerous or stressful circumstances. Perhaps you've narrowly avoided a car accident. Your heart pounds, your breathing becomes shallow and fast, your body floods with adrenaline to put you on red alert, your blood pressure goes up, you might perspire and glucose dumps from your muscles into your bloodstream. All of this is preparing you to face-up to the 'threat' or run like heck in the other direction. This is 'fight or flight' in action.

This reaction is a survival instinct, dating back to early times when life-threatening situations were ever present. These days we can experience anxiety when we're under pressure to meet a deadline, talking in front of our colleagues, preparing for a job interview or even just opening our email. Our lives are not in danger but our bodies react as if this were the case. The same can be true for teenagers.

Anxiety is a normal response to a threatening situation. All of these physical changes happen instinctively as a tiny part of our brain called the amygdala tells the sympathetic nervous system to take over and fire us up so we can do what we have to in order to survive.

Do you know the feeling? Perhaps it happens to you now and then. But maybe, if you're one of the two million-plus Australians (including me) who experience an anxiety disorder, your body and brain respond like that more often, more quickly and more intensely than others.

Trust me, it feels awful. I've experienced anxiety since I was a child, still do and always will. My parents didn't even know anxiety existed when I was a kid and it took me until my early twenties to be diagnosed. Now that I know, I can, and do, take action to manage it. And despite having ups and downs like everyone else, on the whole I live a rich, full and meaningful life. Your teenagers can too.

Our kids are lucky. They have great parents (that's you) who know to look out for their mental health, and who have access to lots of great resources including the family GP.

How do I know what's 'normal'?

Nervousness, stress and anxiety are normal reactions to logical circumstances. What to look out for is if your teen is reacting anxiously to situations where there's no danger present, their reaction is out of proportion to the circumstances or they can't participate in normal daily activities. Below are some of the other symptoms of anxiety in teenagers:

- Difficulty concentrating
- Poor memory
- Mind racing
- Difficulty sleeping
- Always tired
- Feeling edgy
- Avoidance behaviour
- Stomach pains
- Chest pain
- Shakiness
- Nausea
- Diarrhoea
- Sweating

parenting ideas

Anxiety in Secondary School Kids

Okay, so how can I help?

1. Maintain open lines of communication with your teen by regularly spending one-on-one time together, having fun together and making yourself available at a regular time each day for an uninterrupted chat.

2. If you think your teenager is experiencing anxiety, talk to him/her and go together to see your GP to have a conversation about what's been happening.

3. Help your teenager understand what's going on in their body and brain when they are experiencing anxiety. Explain that the amygdala is trying to protect them but can 'overreact' sometimes and prepare their body for 'fight or flight' when it's just not warranted. It's the amygdala that causes all of the physical symptoms like a racing heart (pumping more oxygen to the muscles, readying them for battle), light headedness (due to an imbalance between oxygen and carbon dioxide caused by fast, shallow breathing), shakiness (due to the adrenaline being pumped into their bloodstream), and nausea (resulting from the body shunting blood away from the stomach to the arms and legs so they're primed for a fight or a sprint).

4. Because breathing becomes shallow and fast with anxiety, a simple yet incredibly effective way to show the amygdala that everything is okay is to take deliberate, slower breaths (in for 3, hold for 1, out for 3). After all, no-one can do this when they really are running for their life!

5. Mindfulness is a superpower for the anxious brain (any brain in fact!) and there are lots of great ways to help teenagers learn. The Smiling Mind app is a wonderful way to introduce a regular mindfulness practice or you could take mindfulness classes together. Mindfulness reduces the size of the amygdala as well as fostering other protective changes in the brain.

6. If they are worrying excessively over something – let's say it's presenting a project to their class, a test or an exam – instead of saying, "You'll be fine, you always do so well" or "Don't worry, all the other kids will be nervous too" or similar, try this instead: "I understand how you're feeling, that's so normal, I'd feel the same way". They want to know you 'get' it and that they're not alone. You could also ask, "Is it helpful to keep thinking about it?" When they (inevitably) say "no", suggest focusing attention on something that will help, like practicing more, making cue cards, revising, doing another practice exam or doing something completely different to engage their mind in a fun and positive activity.

7. Help them to discover their values so they can take action in the direction of what really matters to them despite feeling anxious.
